

CREATIVITY

IMPACT

PODCASTS

VIDEO

RECOMMENDER

SUBSCRIBE

UPDATES: COVID-19

02-08-17

Painting Is Alive And Well In Architecture

To depict fantastical architecture of the future, these architects look to the techniques of the past.

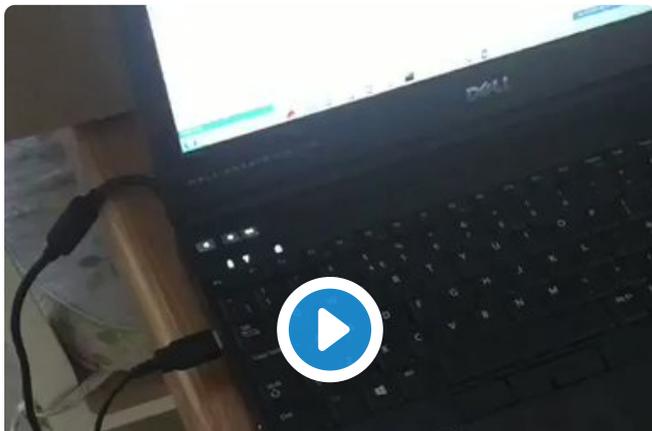

Bharat

@Bharat53021017

To be in active status while WFH..

😂 #workingfromhome

1/22 1stPrize: Last Day, Mykhailo Ponomarenko.

BY DIANA BUDDS

1 MINUTE READ

Over the centuries, architects have developed arresting—and often technically challenging—techniques to help people see what they envision and sell their ideas. In the past, it was all about hand drawn renderings, but today, we're more likely to see high-tech visualizations via virtual reality, computer renderings, and animated fly-throughs. Yet while T-squares and drafting pencils will never be the first thing most architects reach for to communicate their ideas visually, the hand-drawn renderings of the past are far from extinct.

The annual Fairy Tales architecture competition, which invites architects to write and illustrate fantastical stories around architecture, just announced the winners of this year's contest. And two of the finalists—including the winner, Ukrainian architect Mykhailo Ponomarenko, and third place finalists French architects Ariane Merle d'Aubigné and Jean Maleyrat—used painting to depict their narratives.

1st Prize: Last Day, Mykhailo Ponomarenko.

They're a reprieve from the too-perfect high-res renderings that make everything look slick.

“Many of the entrants gravitate away from doing pure architectural renderings, or solely relying on them: we usually see a lot of hand-drawings, paintings, collages, mixed-media experiments,” says Francesca Giuliani, a co-founder of the competition organizer Blank Space alongside Matthew Hoffman. “We think the competition offers designers an opportunity to reclaim some of the creative skills they don't get to employ in their day to day, because of time constraints, or constraints related to a client's specific needs and expectations. As a matter of fact, many submissions aren't even about buildings in the narrow sense, rather they are self-sustaining storytelling and visual universes, environments with their own sets of rules which are entirely up to the participants to define.”

Ponomarenko's story centered around landscapes embedded with sci-fi megastructures. Rather than use rendering software to depict this alternate reality, he used paintings that recall the photorealist work of artists like Robert Bechtle. Meanwhile, Merle d'Aubigné and Maleyrat submitted a story about refugees building structures in the clouds—and to illustrate the concept, borrowed from 17th-century French landscape painters like Nicolas Poussin.

3rdPrize: Up Above, Ariane Merle d'Aubigné and Jean Maleyrat.

They're a reprieve from the too-perfect high-res renderings that make everything look slick. However, that's not to say a fine-art intent can't accompany high-tech techniques. Blank Space encouraged entrants to use non-traditional tools, like Unity and Unreal—software typically reserved for video game design. We're just excited that painting can peacefully co-exist with these programs and not feel like an anachronism. See the artworks in the slideshow above.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Diana Budds is a New York-based writer covering design and the built environment. More

You Might Also Like:

Stuck at home? Take free drawing classes from famous illustrators

These Good Samaritans with a 3D printer are saving lives by making new respirator valves for free

SPONSORED CONTENT

FROM OUR PARTNERS dianomi™

THE AIC
Riding the waves

LATAM
INVESTOR
Now is a Great
Time to Invest in Latin American Mining

ETF GLOBAL
Coronavirus
Now Impacting
Earnings Estimates

THE AIC
Going Green

IMPACT

IMPACT

GiveDirectly will start giving away $1,000 to people most affected by the coronavirus shutdown

IMPACT

A horrifying report says flattening the curve may not be enough—but there are reasons it might be wrong

IMPACT

As an M.D., here's my plea to corporate America to help us stop the spread of COVID-19

CREATIVITY

CREATIVITY

Watch the 'Wonder Woman 1984' cast and other celebrities sing 'Imagine' to lift your coronavirus spirits

CREATIVITY

43 movies to stream on Netflix, Amazon, or HBO while quarantined, depending on your mood

CREATIVITY

These are the seven songs competing to be the coronavirus anthem

CO.DESIGN

CO.DESIGN

Hospital workers design their own face masks, using craft supplies

CO.DESIGN

An app for tracking coronavirus in your community is almost here

CO.DESIGN

Why this swimwear startup just launched an emotional support hotline

WORK LIFE

WORK LIFE

3 reasons why people tune you out—and what to do to be heard

WORK LIFE

5 ways emotional intelligence can help us through the coronavirus crisis

WORK LIFE

How to accomplish life-admin tasks, aka the most boring things on your to-do list list

Advertise | Privacy Policy | Terms | Notice of Collection | Do Not Sell My Data | Permissions | Contact | About Us | Site Map | Fast Company & Inc ©
2020 Mansueto Ventures, LLC

UPDATES: COVID-19

Safe Metal 3D Printing

Metal 3D printer for manufacturing end use parts and functional prototypes

02-08-17

Painting Is Alive And Well In Architecture

To depict fantastical architecture of the future, these architects look to the techniques of the past.

1/22 1stPrize: Last Day, Mykhailo Ponomarenko.

BY DIANA BUDDS

1 MINUTE READ

Over the centuries, architects have developed arresting—and often technically challenging—techniques to help people see what they envision and sell their ideas. In the past, it was all about hand drawn renderings, but today, we're more likely to see high-tech visualizations via virtual reality, computer renderings, and animated fly-throughs. Yet while T-squares and drafting pencils will never be the first thing most architects reach for to communicate their ideas visually, the hand-drawn renderings of the past are far from extinct.

The annual Fairy Tales architecture competition, which invites architects to write and illustrate fantastical stories around architecture, just announced the winners of this year's contest. And two of the finalists—including the winner, Ukrainian architect Mykhailo Ponomarenko, and third place finalists French architects Ariane Merle d'Aubigné and Jean Maleyrat—used painting to depict their narratives.

1st Prize: Last Day, Mykhailo Ponomarenko.

They're a reprieve from the too-perfect high-res renderings that make everything look slick.

“Many of the entrants gravitate away from doing pure architectural renderings, or solely relying on them: we usually see a lot of hand-drawings, paintings, collages, mixed-media experiments,” says Francesca Giuliani, a co-founder of the competition organizer Blank Space alongside Matthew Hoffman. “We think the competition offers designers an opportunity to reclaim some of the creative skills they don’t get to employ in their day to day, because of time constraints, or constraints related to a client’s specific needs and expectations. As a matter of fact, many submissions aren’t even about buildings in the narrow sense, rather they are self-sustaining storytelling and visual universes, environments with their own sets of rules which are entirely up to the participants to define.”

Ponomarenko’s story centered around landscapes embedded with sci-fi megastructures. Rather than use rendering software to depict this alternate reality, he used paintings that recall the photorealist work of artists like Robert Bechtle. Meanwhile, Merle d’Aubigné and Maleyrat submitted a story about refugees building structures in the clouds—and to illustrate the concept, borrowed from 17th-century French landscape painters like Nicolas Poussin.

3rdPrize: Up Above, Ariane Merle d'Aubigné and Jean Maleyrat.

They're a reprieve from the too-perfect high-res renderings that make everything look slick. However, that's not to say a fine-art intent can't accompany high-tech techniques. Blank Space encouraged entrants to use non-traditional tools, like Unity and Unreal—software typically reserved for video game design. We're just excited that painting can peacefully co-exist with these programs and not feel like an anachronism. See the artworks in the slideshow above.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Diana Budds is a New York-based writer covering design and the built environment. More

You Might Also Like:

Stuck at home? Take free drawing classes from famous

Illustrators

These Good Samaritans with a 3D printer are saving lives by making new respirator valves for free

ADVERTISEMENT

Precise. Durable. Eleg
forever

03-19-20 | CORONAVIRUS CRISIS

Farts, cats, naked bodies: People are failing hilariously at working from home

Heroes, all of you!

[Source Images: TheKoRp/iStock, oatinro/iStock, parinyabinsuk/iStock]

BY MARK WILSON

5 MINUTE READ

As COVID-19 has spread across the globe, businesses have prudently shut down offices and moved millions of employees from corporate desks to their domestic couches. Many of us are quarantined in too-small spaces, often with our children, hopping on Zoom meetings like everything is business as usual. And it kind of is, until your kid inevitably runs into the room, cutting off your boss mid-sentence, shouting, “Poo poo!”

Work culture will need to adjust to the new normal, in which toddlers and flatulent dogs are our coworkers. It inevitably will. But until then, here are some of the worst work-from-home fails we’ve seen in the past week. They prove that, however rough your work-from-home experience has been, it could have been a lot worse.

Blame it on the roommate

SPONSORED CONTENT

FROM OUR PARTNERS dianomi

LATAM
INVESTOR
Now is a Great

THE AIC
Going Green

THE AIC
Riding the

ETF GLOBAL
Coronavirus

Unexpected partial nudity

Wild animals

Lindsay Crudele 🌸👑

@thelindsayist

Whole house WFH day 1 report: I whispered "I LOVE YOU" loudly into what turned out to be my spouse's active meeting headset mic.

♡ 229 3:14 PM - Mar 12, 2020

💬 22 people are talking about this

Emily Kager

@EmilyKager

Strange new WFH universe pillow talk is your partner saying "I agree with what you were saying in that meeting this afternoon"

♡ 327 2:33 AM - Mar 18, 2020

💬 28 people are talking about this

rimsha

@rimshutup

Day 3 of WFH and my family started screaming while I was in a meeting and my coworker remarked: "Now I understand why you prefer to go into the office everyday."

♥ 35 6:06 PM - Mar 18, 2020

Christina Kerby

@ChristinaKerby

Pro-tip: if you and your husband are both working from home, check to see if he's on a four-way video call BEFORE running past the office naked to get a towel from the linen closet. #RealStory #COVID19 #WFH twitter.com/tdmv/status/12...

Tony Martin-Veque @tdmv

Teleconferencing is hard

Amanda Baker

@amandahustled

Big WFH learning for me today.

 Remind Ryan to put some clothes on before he goes into the bathroom first thing in the morning.

Today he walked past my team video call BUTT naked

SOOOOOOOO FUNNY

♥ 8 2:33 PM - Mar 17, 2020 · Wokingham, England

 See Amanda Baker's other Tweets

Marissa Notaro

@xoxomarissmarie

First day of working from home is going great. On a video call meeting with my 2 girl teammates and my brother walks into the room with only his boxers on. Happy WFH! 😂

♥ 15 2:46 PM - Mar 16, 2020

 See Marissa Notaro's other Tweets

டோனி ஸ்டார்க் - Tony Stark

@psam1997

The story of my WFH 😂

Hand Stanitizer Horaczek

@stanhoraczek

The people on this conference call don't know, but I BARELY muted my microphone before my dog did something I can only describe as a yell barf.

 20 2:58 PM - Mar 18, 2020

 See Hand Stanitizer Horaczek's other Tweets

Misheal Crocker

@M_C_Crocker

Working from home today and my cat optioned to join me for my work meeting. She means business.

Quan

@QuanTarantino_

First WFH meeting and my dog decides to show his ass 🐶

♡ 4 4:17 PM - Mar 16, 2020

See Quan's other Tweets

daniel taroy

@danieltaroy

just started talking to my cat in the middle of a 68-person zoom meeting—and i wasn't muted!!! send the meteor!!!!

♥ 51 7:07 PM - Mar 16, 2020

 See daniel taroy's other Tweets

Darius

@ComethTheNerd

WFH:

- join meeting
- unmute to speak
- washing machine starts spinning
- hurriedly get up to escape the noise
- not realise charger is plugged in
- proceed to loudly knock pint of water + cup of coffee all over everything

- ...continue speaking calmly as if nothing happened

♥ 29 12:26 PM - Feb 11, 2020

 See Darius's other Tweets

Body sounds

that fucking bug woman again

@taxxonomic

hashtag wfh Looks (everyone including me had their cameras turned off)

Ashley Casperite

@missalwayswrite

I'm in a WFH meeting and my Google Home just answered a question someone on the video call asked, unprompted.

I nearly jumped out of my skin.

Challenges of interior design

Kaleb Coleman [AR/VR]

@kalebcoleman

Every WFH meeting so far:

"I'm sorry, you go..." "no, sorry I-" "Well what I was sayi-" "I'm sorry, were you saying something?" "Go ahead, no sorry, you go..."

5 voices speak at once

suddenly no one speaks

SLOW PORTAL ZOOM INTENSIFIES DURING AWKWARD SILENCE #COVID19

♥ 20 6:57 AM - Mar 11, 2020

[See Kaleb Coleman \[AR/VR\]'s other Tweets](#)

Philina Fan
@skyeefalling

This AM, WFH and prepping for 5 meetings:

Me: I don't have to put make-up on! Camera's pretty blurry, no one's gonna see this nose zit.

First meeting:

Coworker: There's something stuck to your nose. Is it food?

Subsequent meetings:

Me: Yes, it's a zit, let's move on.

♡ 6 7:04 AM - Mar 11, 2020

 See Philina Fan's other Tweets

Aaron Pobre

@aaronnotpoor

Don't say "I heard email got coronavirus" in a wfh comms meeting. It does not land.

♥ 18 3:03 PM - Mar 12, 2020

 See Aaron Pobre's other Tweets

Josh Newton

@nooneswatching

WFH Side effect:

We can no longer use "Sorry we're getting kicked out of this room" as an excuse to end a meeting on time.

♥ 29 4:30 PM - Mar 17, 2020

I'm not losing it, you're losing it!

Heather DeLand

@HeatherDeLand

Trying to press the 'leave meeting' button really fast on Zoom so I don't have to hold my awkward goodbye face for more than a second#WFH #workingfromhome

♡ 9 6:28 PM - Mar 17, 2020

 See Heather DeLand's other Tweets

Kids saying the darndest things

kief

@grtbarrierkief day 1 of WFH and i already burped on a bluejeans meeting thinking i was on mute 🤡

♡ 7 3:38 PM - Mar 16, 2020

 See kief's other Tweets

Yvette Chua

@yvettemc18

WFH Day 3: Was in a 15 person online meeting, thought I was muted, farted really loudly..... shit 🤢

♡ 16 5:41 PM - Mar 18, 2020

 See Yvette Chua's other Tweets

Gareth Barlow

@GarethBarlow

If you do WFH and have a Skype meeting, always consider if the 'art' on the wall is:

- A) In shot
- B) Appropriate

Okay, this is a work-from-home win

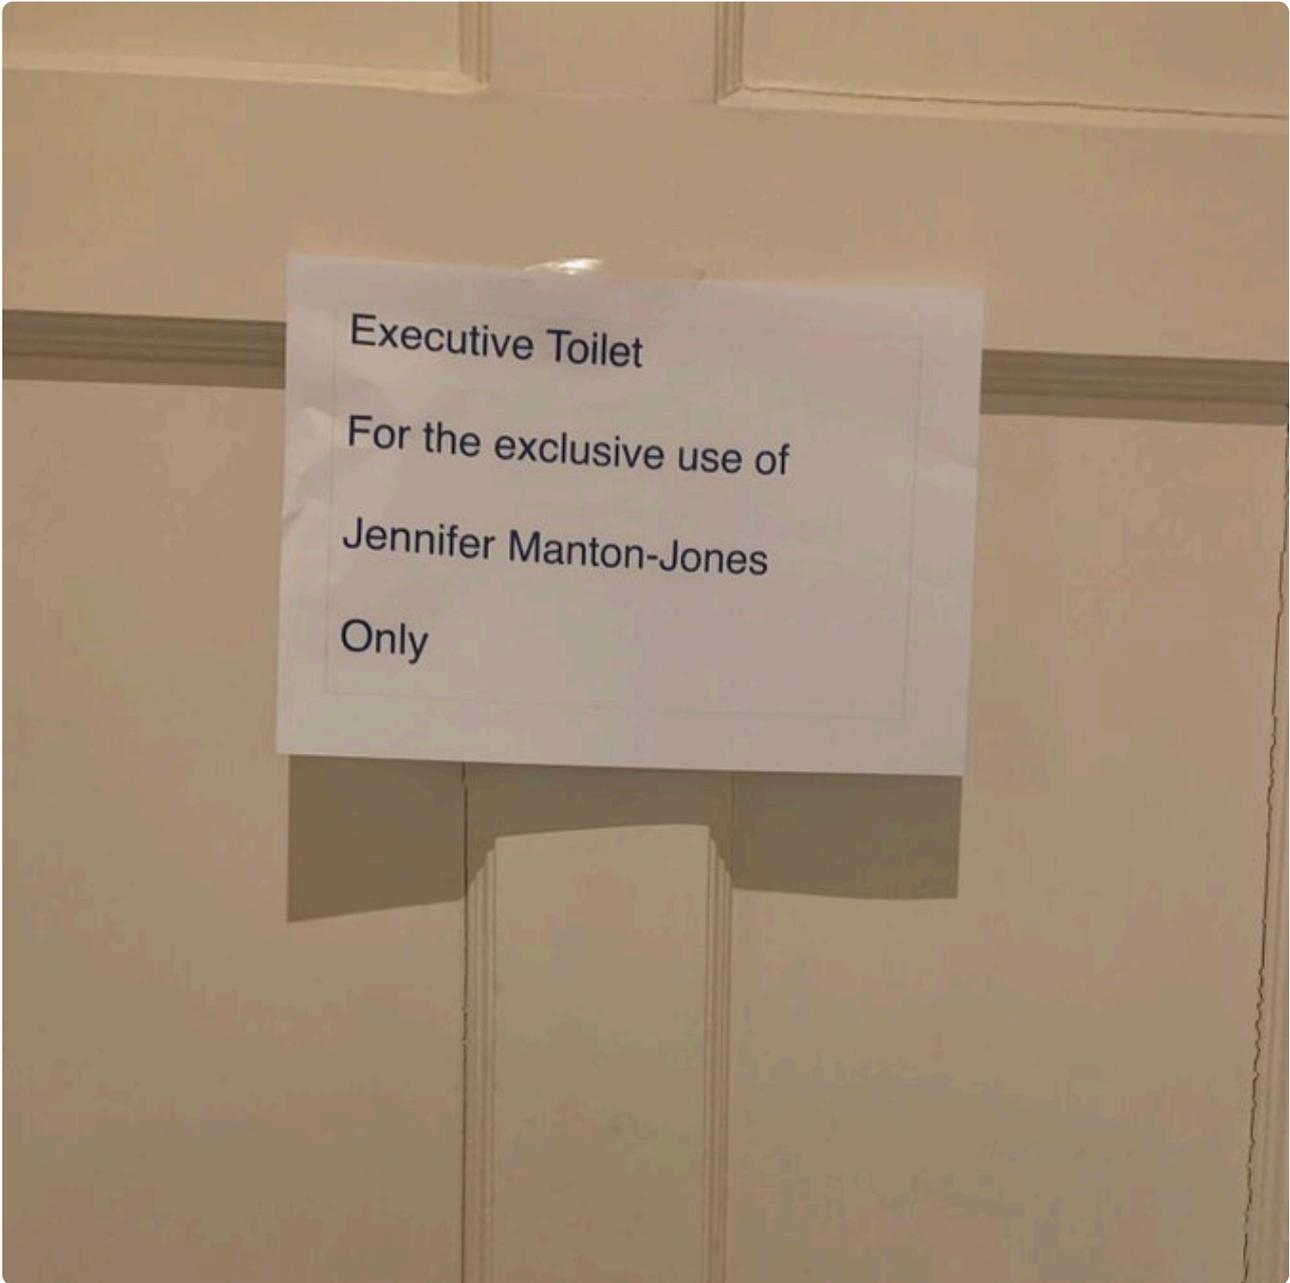

Ramsay Jones CBE

@Ramsay59

@MantonJen has this #WFH all sorted.....

♥ 4 6:55 PM - Mar 18, 2020

 See Ramsay Jones CBE's other Tweets

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Mark Wilson is a senior writer at Fast Company who has written about design, technology, and culture for almost 15 years. His work has appeared at Gizmodo, Kotaku, PopMech, PopSci, Esquire, American Photo and Lucky Peach More

You Might Also Like:

Coronavirus proves we should all work less

Do you have coronavirus? Scientists are working on an app for that

IMPACT

IMPACT

GiveDirectly will start giving away $1,000 to people most affected by the coronavirus shutdown

IMPACT

A horrifying report says flattening the curve may not be enough—but there are reasons it might be wrong

IMPACT

As an M.D., here's my plea to corporate America to help us stop the spread of COVID-19

CREATIVITY

CREATIVITY

Watch the 'Wonder Woman 1984' cast and other celebrities sing 'Imagine' to lift your coronavirus spirits

CREATIVITY

43 movies to stream on Netflix, Amazon, or HBO while quarantined, depending on your mood

CREATIVITY

These are the seven songs competing to be the coronavirus anthem

CO.DESIGN

CO.DESIGN

Hospital workers design their own face masks, using craft supplies

CO.DESIGN

An app for tracking coronavirus in your community is almost here

CO.DESIGN

Why this swimwear startup just launched an emotional support hotline

WORK LIFE

WORK LIFE

3 reasons why people tune you out—and what to do to be heard

WORK LIFE

5 ways emotional intelligence can help us through the coronavirus crisis

WORK LIFE

How to accomplish life-admin tasks, aka the most boring things on your to-do list

Use

Feb

Advertise | Privacy Policy | Terms | Notice of Collection | Do Not Sell My Data | Permissions | Contact | About Us | Site Map | Fast Company & Inc ©
2020 Mansueto Ventures, LLC 